

10th Anniversary of the Graduate School of Global Studies
(Saturday, November 30, 2019)

Theme: What is Global Studies?
-Pursuing Conviviality and Constructing New Civilizations-

(Venue: B1 Ryoshinkan Bldg, Imadegawa Campus)

10:00-10:30 Registration

10:30-10:40: Welcoming Remarks by Takashi Matsuoka, President of Doshisha University

10:40-10:45: Opening Remarks by Hisae Nakanishi, Dean and Professor of the Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University

10:45-11:30: Keynote Lecture

“The Need and Fear of the Universal: Insights from the History of Interreligious Coexistence in Ethiopia” by Éloi Ficquet, Associate Professor, The Center for Social Studies on Religion, School of Advanced Studies in the Social Sciences (EHESS), France

Commentator: Ada Taggar-Cohen, Professor, Graduate School of Theology, Doshisha University

11:30-11:45 Coffee Break

11:45-13:15 Session 1: Human and Nature in the Historical Crossroad

Moderator: Hisae Nakanishi, Professor, Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University

Speakers:

1. “Food Diversity, Climate Change and Long-term Sustainability: Lessons from the Prehistoric Jomon Period, Japan” by Junko Habu, Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of California at Berkeley
2. “The Emergence of Responsibility in Global Research and Innovation Systems: Special Focus on Gene Editing,” by Monica Racovita, Research Fellow, Science, Technology and Society Unit, Graz University of Technology Austria
3. “World Maps in 2100” by Yoichi Mine, Professor, Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University

Commentator: Wilfredo Carada, Adjunct Professor, College of Public Affairs, University of the Philippines, Los Banos

13:15-14:15 Lunch

14:15-16:15 Session 2: Globalization and the Future of Civilizations

Moderator: Yoichi Mine, Professor, Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University

Speakers:

1. “The Role of China in Shaping New Global Order” by Ren Xiao, Professor, the Institute of International Studies, Fudan University, China
2. “Crises of Governance: Predicaments of the Middle East” by Mahmood Sariolghalam, Professor, National University, Tehran, Iran (Visiting Professor, Department of International Relations, University of Southern California)
3. “The End of ‘American Exceptionalism’ and the Future of Global Order” by Fumiko Nishizaki, Professor, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, The University of Tokyo
4. “Decolonizing War/Games: Play and Design for the Pluriverse” by Leo Ching, Professor, Department of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies, Duke University, USA

16:15-16:30 Coffee Break

16:30-18:00 Session 3: Toward a Society in Which No One Is Left Behind: The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the Human Security Indicators of Japan

Lecturer: Yukio Takasu, Special Advisor to the United Nations Secretary-General on Human Security

Panel Discussion:

Chair: Eiji Oyamada, Professor, Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University

Panelists:

- Emi Sakugawa, Doctoral Student, Graduate School of Global Studies, Doshisha University
- Jeong, Yujing, Research Fellow, Institute of Area Studies, Okinawa University
- Motoi Wada, Professor, Graduate School of Science and Engineering, Doshisha University
- Yukiko Nishikawa, Professor, Graduate School of International Development, Nagoya University
- Iizuka Mari, Professor, Doshisha Business School
- Yusuke Dan, President, Toyo Gakuen University