

Global Justice Conference

Series as sources of moral and political education

Speaker: Sandra Laugier

Professor at the University of Paris-I Panthéon-Sorbonne, specialist in the philosophy of language and moral philosophy, Sandra Laugier works on subjects as diverse as perfectionism, the ethics of care, popular culture, feminism, but also democracy.

Adopting the method of the American philosopher and cinephile Stanley Cavell, she delivers a stimulating reflection on the TV series, not as an aesthetic object, but as a "matrix of intelligibility" of reality, of our relationship with others. A tool for moral education, according to her, and even of political thought and combat.
